WHAT'S YOUR FAVORITE GAME??

WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

As we've all noticed, we are all spread out far and wide doing the good work for our clients and communities. However, we know that we don't get to know each other as much as we may hope to so in an effort to do that throughout 2022 we are going to virtually get to know each other!

For our SECOND

WE WANT TO KNOW YOU!

portion of the briefing:

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE GAME?!

This can include but is not limited to: board games, card games, pc/game consoles; etc!

You: Well, yes I sure do, Jaci! I love games! What do I do next?

Me: Email your information about your favorite game to play to jacy@centennialmhc.org, and a picture of you playing said game, if you want. If you do not have a picture, I will just include your staff photo with your information.

This will all be included in the Briefing for March 21st!!

Deadline to me: March 17th by Noon.

Women have always been part of history. But for centuries, their participation in it was overlooked: Early history texts often excluded women altogether, aside from accounts of powerful women like queens.

Historians—who were almost entirely men—often saw the past through the lens of the “great man” theory, which holds that history is largely shaped by male heroes and their struggles.
